Every listing on this site is a record of facts a business publishes on its own website. This guide explains each field.

Name and description. The name of the coach, matchmaker or service. The description says who they are and where they are based. It may mention the price they publish on their own site.

Category. Each listing belongs to one or more categories. Dating coaches teach dating skills. Matchmakers screen candidates and introduce you to partners. Dating profile services write or manage dating-app profiles and take photos, without ongoing coaching. No profile service is listed yet. A single listing can hold more than one category.

Location. The city, region and country where the business is based. Most listings also offer video calls. Use the location filters to find listings in a specific area.

Who they work with (Serves). The groups a business names: men, women, LGBTQ+ singles, seniors, people who are divorced and dating again, or neurodivergent singles. Pick a business that works with people like you. You can filter listings by this field. Many listings leave it blank, because the business does not name a group.

Services. What the business offers. Dating coaching covers profile help, messaging, approach and confidence. Matchmaking finds and screens potential partners. Profile writing improves your dating-app profile. Photography provides profile photos. A business may offer more than one service.

Formats. How the business works. In person means you meet face to face. Video calls mean you can work from anywhere. Phone means calls. Group programs bring several clients together. Self-paced courses let you work on your own schedule.

Published session price and price note. The price the business states on its own site, in its own words. The price note explains what the figure covers, for example a course, a mentoring package or a membership. Prices on this site run from 17 USD to 250,000 USD and more, and some are in other currencies. Compare what each price covers, not just the figure. Prices change, so check the provider page.

Certifications and languages. The certifications a business states and the languages it works in. Not every business states these. A blank field does not mean the coach lacks training. Ask the business.

Free intro call. Whether the business offers a free consultation. Some do. Some charge for a first consultation. Ask before you book.

Source and date checked. These show the page the facts came from and the day we read it. Facts can go stale, so check the linked page before you book. The source link lets you check the facts yourself.

Badges and plans. A Verified badge means the business claimed its listing and we matched the claim to the business. A Featured label means the business pays to be shown first on its city page. A badge or a plan changes the position on the page. It does not change the facts.

Frequently asked questions

Where do the facts on a listing come from?

From the business's own website, on the date shown in the listing. Each listing links to the page the facts came from. The business has not yet reviewed them.

Does a paid plan change the facts on the listing?

No. Your specialties, format and published price come from your own site or what you tell us. A paid plan adds a badge and a place higher on the page.

What does it mean when a field is blank?

The business has not published that fact on its own site, or we have not read and recorded it. Check the listing's source link for the latest facts.
